OUR THEME

The Senior Class of 1955 has bound the pages of its yearbook together with the theme of symbols. Symbols have been defined as signs with something added. This little "something" has been known to stir up people to piety, heroism, joy, and terror.

The use of Christian symbols first began in the Roman Empire, since the early Christians could not, even in the catacombs, safely express themselves except in symbolic form. They had learned the great power of the symbol from our Blessed Lord, for He, Himself, relied heavily on symbols by which to teach His flock. He constantly referred to the great symbolic institutions, ceremonies, persons, and events of the Old Law, and incorporated symbolic substances and acts — water, bread, wine, anointing, pouring, eating, drinking — into the very imparting of divine grace.

Christians, however, do not have a priority over symbols. Countries too, use them. Our country's best known symbols are the flag and our National Anthem — symbols of our great land.

And so our theme is symbols, through which so much can be said and through which so much beauty and meaning can be expressed. May those we have chosen speak most eloquently for us of those great truths, great gifts of God, great models set before us that have formed the foundation for our lives.

Dear Kathleen,

I wish you all the luck in the future. I will never forget you and your wonderful smile. I'll pray for you and the wonderful vocation you have chosen.

There is only one priesthood -- Christ's priesthood. It was organized by Christ to enable the members of his Mystical Body to attain Heaven. The Sacrifice of the Altar is offered through and with the Alter Christus for the faithful. The functions of the priesthood are five-fold;
to offer, to bless, to preside, to preach,
and to baptize.

March 29, 1955

A cordial salute to the Graduates of Cathedral High:

Your Annual, outstanding in format and literary excellence, reflects scholarship and esprit de corps.

The theme of Christian symbolism threading through its pages reveals much research that uplifts mind and heart. Indeed, your own lives revolve around beautiful symbols. Strive for the counterpart, idealism.

Symbols stimulate thinking. The rational creature by virtue of his natural endowments symbolizes the love and goodness of God -- a visible emblem of something invisible.

My dear children, love God and thus possess your souls in peace.

Sincerely,

+ Charles F. Buddy

SAN DIEGO 1, CALIFORNIA

To the Esteemed Graduates of 1955
Cathedral Girls' High School

The signal success which has crowned your scholastic efforts has been richly deserved, and on the happy occasion of your graduation, I congratulate you most cordially.

The Class of 1955 has distinguished itself not only by its academic achievements, notable as they have been, but even more so, the Graduating Class will long be remembered for the fine sterling character of its members. You have exemplified all that is best in young Catholic woman-hood; you have been an inspiration to the lower class-men; you have been a lasting credit to your parents; a great joy to your devoted teachers, the Venerable Sisters of Saint Joseph, and a rich glory to the Cathedral.

It is the ardent prayer of the Cathedral Staff that the Holy Spirit of Wisdom enfold you and continue to guide you towards the eternal Commencement.

Devotedly yours in Our Lord,

WILLIAM A. BERGIN
Rector

This Coat of Arms stands as a symbol of the origin, end, and identification of the community. All honor to the noble crown of Christ the King, to the majestic crescent, symbolic of Our Lady, to the carpenter's square used by Saint Joseph, and to the purity, the humility and the charity in the lives of those whose privilege it has been, it is, and it will be to belong to the Congregation of the Sisters of Saint Joseph of Carondelet.

SENIORS

As symbols is the theme of our annual, so is this picture symbolic. We will be leaving Cathedral before long, each one of us to go her own way. In our hearts we will always have with us these happy memories of our high school years.

The Trinity, the fundamental belief in God on which all else is based. The fish became a symbol of the Savior as the initial letter of the words, "Jesus Christ, Son of God, Savior," spell the word, "fish" in Greek. The triangle is equal as indeed the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are equal in authority and power.

UNDERCLASSMEN

These underclassmen move along from class to class, realizing that their hard work will one day reap its reward for them.

"I am the True Vine..." Christ is the Vine. The faithful are the branches. Through Christ's Church He engrafts us into Christ, the True Vine, thereby enabling us to act supernaturally and to participate in and live by the divine life of God, Himself.

Juniors Eleven A

To work and play together! As juniors we launched back into school last fall. Perhaps all of us were wondering just what the Alma Mater would have in store for us. It wasn't long before we found out. To add variety to the usual schedule, we met the test tubes of chemistry and the le, la, les and the el, la, los and las of French and Spanish. These were head-on collisions, but we have managed to recover. There were the novel interests of a G.A.A. with varsity competition with other schools. The new auditorium was awaiting us, and with it came the activity period. What surprises it has brought us!

A Saint in the Making!

Standing: Margaret Lean, Connie Lingo, Dora Jean Rudd, and Dorothy Brown.

We learned to work together through the many projects we have tackled over the months. Here you see us in a very significant corner of our classroom. Our Lady, Mystical Rose, looks down upon us with motherly care. That banner on the door is the most beautiful, ever, in red and gray. And the juniors, there you see them, joined together for a winner! This group sponsored St. Cecilia in the Saints Alive party, in which she was proclaimed Most Beautifull (St. Philomena, our class patroness, who, incidentally, hasn't had a dull moment since her unanimous election, didn't win a prize, but her narrator did!)

The numerous cookie sales, tag days, movies, record hops, all provided those so necessary finances for that night of — Silver Starlight — and then all too quickly, anticipation became reality; then memory. Final exams crashed down upon us, final reports rushed in before a breath could be snatched, and the door closed once again upon a school year of happy memories.

Juniors Eleven B

On that September morning we entered Cathedral as juniors. This we felt, would be a big year for us, and it was! We got off to a good start by our choice of fine class officers. Early in the fall, those of us who have any athletic ability tried out for the varsity. Christmas came soon, and its wonderful spirit filled everyone. Instead of exchanging gifts, we sent all our presents to the orphans in Tijuana. Our usual Christmas party we held on the feast of the Three Kings, Little Christmas!

Cup-cake sales, tag days, movies, and record hops soon followed. All proceeds went toward our Junior Prom, the biggest event of the year. We made so many plans! Band, bid, ballroom, dress—it seemed that prom night would never come.

Finally the hour arrived for us to pick our class rings. They are so beautiful, and we, most impatiently, awaited their arrival in February. At long last, we could proudly display them.

Another very important event was the patron drive. It was a fight to the finish. We didn't win, but we worked hard and ended with over a hundred percent.

This year will always be remembered by every girl. We worked, prayed, and played together as the juniors of 1954-55.

Sophomores Ten B

Under the patronage of Our Lady of Guadalupe, we of 10B set out upon our sophomore year at Cathedral. Our own Christmas was made the happier because we sent a big, big box of food to the orphanage in Tijuana. We shall always remember the entertainment at our Three Kings party. Raffling off a parakeet and kitten put our treasury in a definitely higher income tax bracket. So event hurried after event, and soon we could all look back upon another happy year, and now can look forward to returning to Cathedral as — at last — upper classmen!

Freshman Nine A

As we first donned our "Calkin's originals" in the fall, we felt as proud as any new freshmen would. Getting used to carrying our books (and the seniors') from class to class was strange and exciting. We chose our class officers, colors, and song and prepared for an eventful year.

We started the new year anticipating and fearing initiation. However, we soon discovered that the seniors were human after all. Our chance to really know them came at our welcoming party. The day our emblems arrived we were overjoyed and walked around with our grey and gold shining on our sweaters while admiring glances followed us. We will always remember the work and fun of our first year at Cathedral!

ORGANIZATIONS

Cathedral leaders discuss the widespread activities of their organizations.

Through Mary we have Christ who is symbolized by the Chi-Rho. The lily represents the purity of Mary; the crown, her Queenship. Superimposed upon the "M" is the first word of the angel's greeting, "Ave". Mary, the Mother of God, is our spiritual mother. She is our model and guide in all things.

Dear Student Body,

I wish to express my sincere appreciation for the enthusiasm you have shown during this past year in both participating and assisting in all student body activities. There is instilled in all of you that generous spirit that is Cathedral. The class of '55 will be leaving this year, but we place our Alma Mater in your hands. We trust that you will guard and protect her in the years to come. May you grow to know and love her as we who are now graduating have loved and always will love Cathedral Girls' High School.

STUDENT BODY COUNCIL

The Student Body Council is composed of Student Body officers, section presidents, Sodality Prefect, and G.A.A. president Carole Hanson, Irma Serrano and Nancye Pennington, senior presidents, Ludevina Arciaga, junior president, Sharon Hiltzley, sophomore president, and Barbara Hanson, freshman president, belong to the Catholic Interscholastic Council, a group composed of the leading officers of each Catholic high school in San Diego. This council meets to discuss problems pertinent to the students in the schools represented.

SODALITY OF OUR LADY

Carole Rempe, Sodality Prefect, moves her class on the chart during the campaign for selling religious Christmas cards.

The Sodality of Our Lady conducted three major projects this year. The first was the campaign to "Put Christ Back Into Christmas." Besides making posters, sodalists enlisted the help of the entire school in the selling of religious Christmas cards.

In order to counteract the commercial and irreverent observance of Hallowe'en, Sodalists sponsored a Saints Alive party preceding the feast of All Saints. The beauty and cleverness of the "would-be saints" spoke well of the enthusiasm which this project created.

Most important of all, Sodalists endeavored to institute a real "flare" for Mary fashions. On the opposite page, Sodality officers model Mary fashions for all occasions.

SAINTS ALIVE!

LEGION OF THE SACRED HEARTS

Sharing in the spiritual life of the Cathedral are the Legionnaires. In their white uniforms and red capes, they have become a traditional part of religious processions and ceremonies. In the picture to the left, Legionnaires lead the imposing line of San Diego Catholic high school seniors into the Cathedral on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of Bishop Charles F. Buddy's ordination to the priesthood.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

Christmas caroling at the Navy Hospital proved a pleasing project to both patients and members of the J. R. C.

LIBRARY CLUB

Members of the Library Club assumed full charge of Cathedral High School Library this year. Under the able guidance of Rosemarie Palumbo, president, Carol Ann Romero, vice-president, and Yvonne Mitchell, secretary, these students accessioned new books, catalogued them, authorized the checking out of books, and supervised the library during study classes.

Lower right: These are familiar faces behind that desk. Left to right: Joyce Cruger, first period, Julia Hjorth, last period, Carol Ann Romero, after school, Barbara Forkenbrock, fourth period, and Mary Rosa, second period in the afternoon.

G. A. A.

We've got a team! No wonder we've cheered for it. In fact, we've got lots of teams — senior, junior, sophomore and freshman — all active in intramural games of both volleyball and basketball. Our varsity teams for both sports were wonderful, and whether the score favored Cathedral or not, our spirit was ever victorious. For all of this, we can thank our splendid physical education teacher, Miss Virginia Soltys, and our enthusiastic officers.

Miss Soltys glances back for only a moment during that exciting game with O. L. P.

Toe Dancer?

At least it put everyone else on her toes, too.

won or lost in there.

What spirit!"

DEPARTMENTS

These Cathedralites, Patricia Browne, Mary Davey and Ann Porter "stack" their book knowledge acquired throughout their twelve years at St. Joseph's.

The Sacraments — All knowledge has been presented to us in the light of these seven channels of God's grace that we may learn to live Sacramentally.

RELIGION

Seniors apply what they have learned in religion to projects during American Education Week.

The flag and Our Lady's statue represent the harmony of the Catholic educational principle, "A good Christian is a good Citizen."

CIVICS - ENGLISH

Civics students plan a

The Bill of Rights

Members of the Speech Arts class entertain.

LANGUAGES

The Spanish class explores South America.

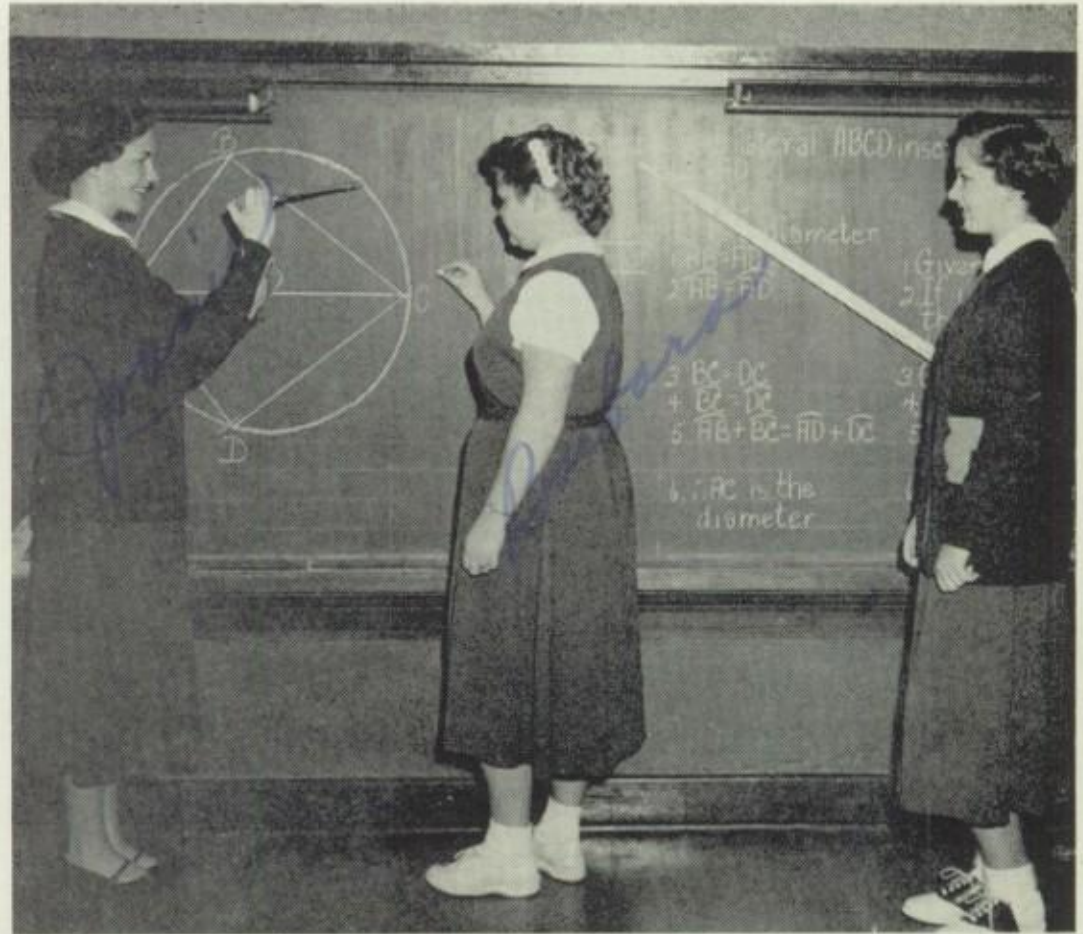

Latin honor students compare results of their mid-semester exams.

French enthusiasts solve a crossword puzzle from their French periodical "La Croisade"

MATHEMATICS - SCIENCE

Geometry students' heads whirl with theorems, proofs, and reasons — yes, there must be a reason!

Seniors explore the esoteric depths of advanced algebra.

Even if the juniors aren't mixed up, the chemicals are!

HOME ECONOMICS - COMMERCIAL

Members of the sewing class may "sew in joy", but nearly as often, they "rip in tears."

Prospective homemakers learn the "do's and don't's" of glassware.

Typing II students aren't even tempted to peek at the keys — or aren't they!

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

When it's a little cool for gym suits, square dancing fills the agenda.

... but more often, the neat maroon gym suits are donned, and after a bit of "limbering up", a lively game gets under way.

MUSIC

Accompanists
Joanne Krejsa,
Jill Baltes (seated)
and Dora Jean Rudd, (standing), take a bow.

There's music in the air! And that is more than just a song. Of first importance is the choir. Every student at Cathedral appreciates the beautiful singing for the A. S. B. Mass each week.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

The hard work in the auditorium makes possible the beautiful music for Masses, programs, Music Festival, recital, graduation.

In the inspiring setting of the Cathedral choir loft, the hours of practice reach full fruition.

MUSIC

PUPILS

Seated: Joanne Krejsa and Dora Jean Rudd, students of organ, show Patricia Kelly, Sharon O'Neill, Marie Basile, Marie Steinauer and Mary R. Chayer, piano pupils, that they can play very well on either instrument.

Kathy, this has been the craziest year of the time I've ever had. But I'm glad you was with me here at Cathedral. Love always, Kathy Sandra Lowenstein and Jill Baltes, piano students — Jeannette Gonzales, voice — Eleanor Hodges, organ — Virginia Bishop, violin and Theresa Masterman, piano, look through some volumes of the music library.

Carolyn Marie Rempe, seated, is the winner of the Bank of America Achievement Certificate in Fine Arts. As a student of piano throughout her four years at Cathedral, Carolyn has won distinction for herself in this field. Virginia Bishop, violin student, has generously shared her talent on a number of occasions for both student body and guest audiences.

ACTIVITIES

Extra-curricular activities have kept students at Cathedral busy throughout the year. These seniors gather to talk over the various meetings of the Marian Year conference held at the San Diego College for Women.

Catholic Action -- not what we do, but what we are. The unity of the Christian hierarchy and the participation of the faithful. The Chi-Rho stands for Christ, the tiara for the Pope, the mitre for the Bishop, and the crowns signify the baptized, confirmed, and the ordained members of the Church. By the reception of these sacraments we are commissioned to the active apostolate to extend Christ's kingdom on earth.

Original chapeaux highlighted initiation capers. Freshman ingenuity was finally rewarded by refreshing "cokes" served by the seniors!

Below: The Saints Scored Again! Left to right: Yolanda Guerra recognized the most saints, Carolyn Wahl was most authentic as Pope St. Pius X, Connie Lingo was most beautiful as St. Cecilia, and Dora J. Rudd was judged best narrator.

His Excellency, Bishop Charles F. Buddy, begins the prayers at the foot of the altar on the occasion of the Fortieth Anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Members of the choir and speech arts class presented a program for American Education Week.

Father Bergin awards a beautiful daily missal to Delfina Fernandez, who sold the most tickets for the annual St. Joseph's bazaar.

Blue Velvet!

Seniors were dancing on clouds of blue velvet that night.

In colorful pageantry, the speech class presented a choric poem, COME LET US ADORE. The Portuguese folk dance at the end was a favorite!

Every classroom trimmed its ever-green in honor of the Christ Child. Mary Weismantel opens another "window" of the advent calendar, while others finish up the icicles on the tree.

Mary Louise Hickey, who presented BARRETT'S OF WIMPOLE STREET for the student body, gives Julia Hjorth some hints on Julia's part of Bella in the same play to be produced by Father Aherne for Catholic Book Week.

Irma Serrano M.C.'s for the Hi-Debber fashion show.

Lower left: Driver Education classes enjoy Mr. Harry N. Long of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Below: Activities may crowd the days, but the annual must go on! Just ask the two literary editors!

Prize winners, Beatriz Orci, left, and Dorothy Kolen-ski, right, re-read their essays on The Advantages of Private Medical Care. Besides the first prize of $50.00, Beatriz's essay won the distinction of being submitted for national competition. Dorothy's won $35.00 for her.

Carolyn Royal, center, editor of '55 Cathedral works with her two assistants, Sonya Ackley, left, and Ruth Buechner, right.

It was like a new world into which the '55 Cathedral staff was introduced, a world in which dummies and layout, proportions and cuts, rubber cement and deadlines suddenly tumbled out of the dictionary to assume very life-like proportions. Many extra hours were spent in their intricate company and the sentiments of the staff were quite adequately expressed when one of its members declared, "To think I've always taken annuals for granted!"

Carol Higgs, photography editor, proves to Barbara Ohlfs and Sophia Oddo, literary editors, she has learned to take the pictures, too, as well as plan them.

CATHEDRAL STAFF

Nancy McDonald prints some signs for the business end of the annual, while Ann Porter types the very first page of copy for the '55 Cathedral!

Irene Serrano, typist, admires the "first drawings" of the symbols for division pages. Carolyn Rempe explains the symbol for the senior class to Irene.

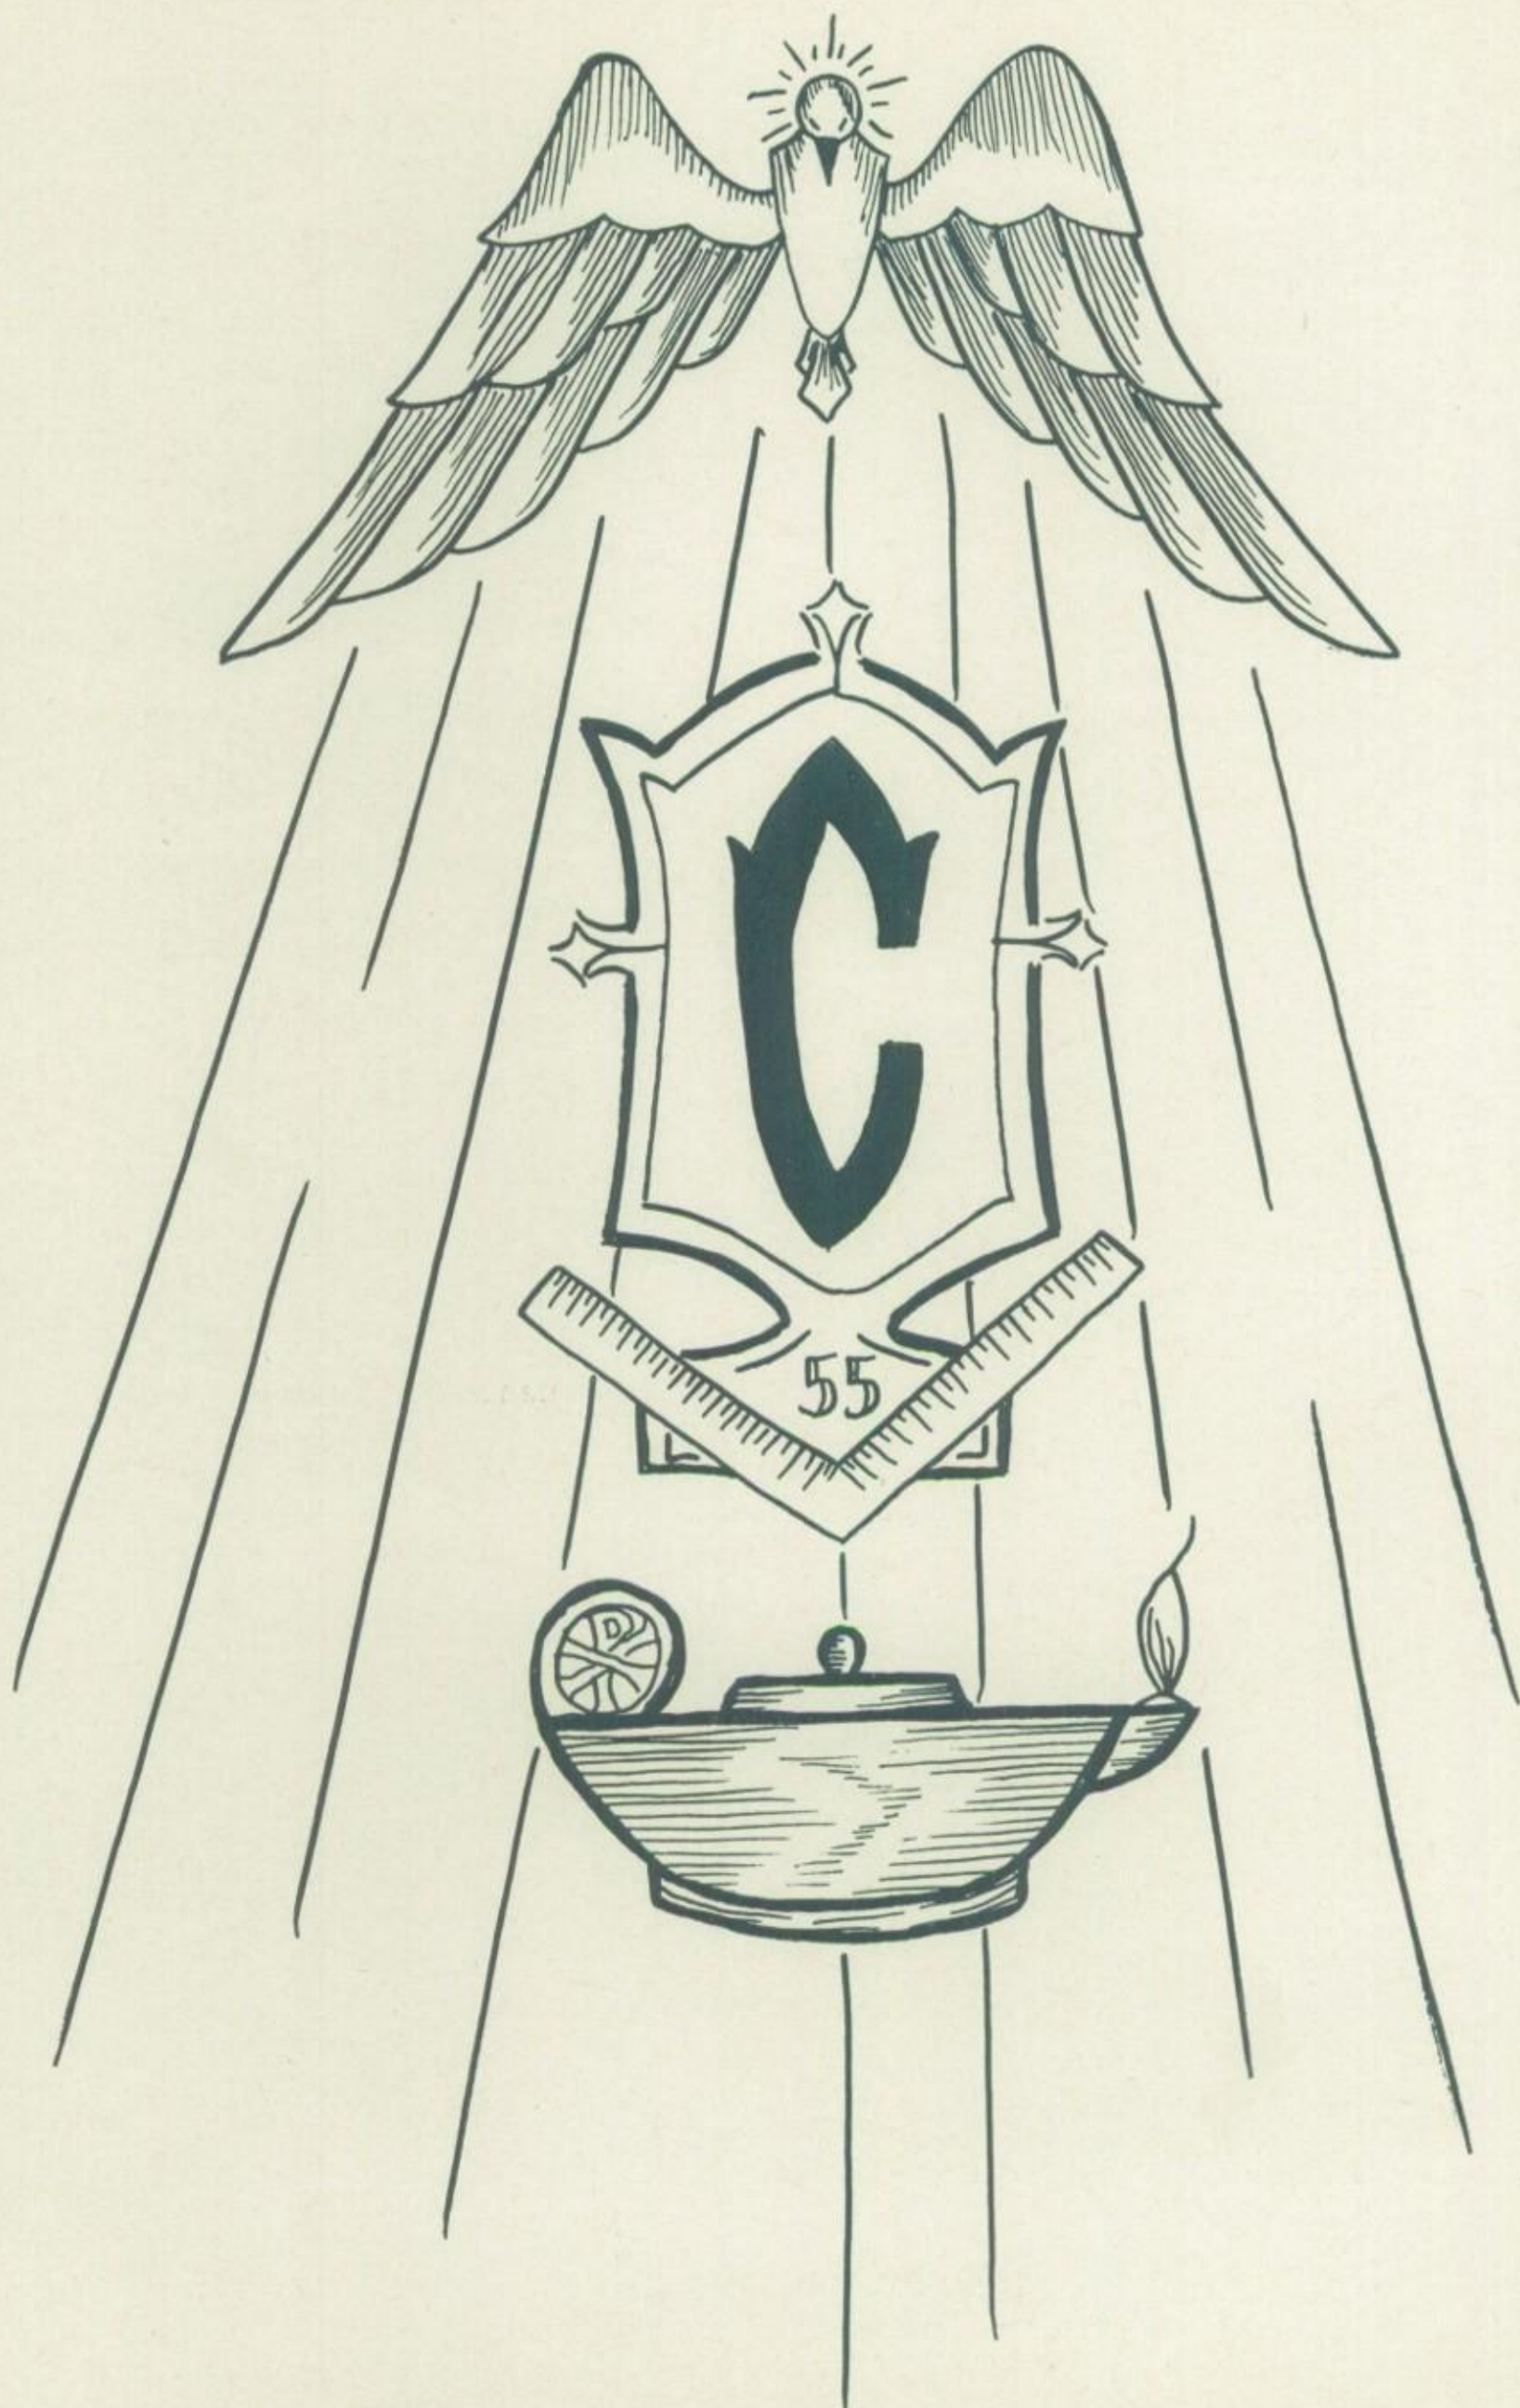

Below: Ann Porter, left, reports to Nancy McDonald, business manager, who gladly moves 12A to the leading position in the patron drive. Pat Mulherin and Mary Gonsalves wait to give the percentage of the sections from which they collected.

Lower right: A typical Saturday morning scene. Mr. Waterson of Sunset Engravers crops a picture so that Carolyn can mount it. Ruth and Sonya finish up the measuring along Mr. Waterson's "crop lines" and prepare to do some "cutting up", themselves.

SENIOR FAREWELL

The Senior symbol depicts the four years at Saint Joseph's Cathedral marked by the help and guidance of the Holy Spirit. Saint Joseph, our patron, is represented by the carpenter's square beneath the senior emblem — the same emblem as on our rings and on our sweaters. The lamp of knowledge burns a little brighter as we now complete our high school course.

Any attempt to express all that we feel toward Cathedral would be inadequate, but we do want to say that we are grateful for all Cathedral High has given us.

We wish to thank the entire faculty for their patience and understanding, the Junior class for the beautiful prom, the Sophomores for their fine school spirit, and the Freshmen for the good sportsmanship they displayed during initiation. Thank you, Cathedral, and goodbye.
